

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Gas has been successfully introduced as an illuminant on the streets of the British metropolis. The holder, which is charged at the end of every night trip, is placed under the seats.

—Metallic pens were first introduced for sale about 1803, though iron pens are mentioned in 1685. Up to 1835, or thereabouts, quill pens were almost universally used. Now they are rarely seen.

—A dark green and blue marble vein has been discovered along the Shawangunk Mountains, New York. It is of a very fine grain and easily worked. The stone throughout is veined with dark lines. As soon as the proper leases are perfected the quarry will be worked, and it promises to be a bonanza.

—The Oil and Drug News says that a nearly bald servant of Mr. Stevens, a British Consul, used, after trimming lamps, to rub his hands on his head, and after three months had a much finer head of glossy black hair than ever before. Mr. Stevens tried the experiment on animals which had lost their hair, with equal success. The petroleum should be of the most refined quality, and should be rubbed in vigorously and quickly with the palm of the hand, six or seven times, at intervals of three days, except in the case of horses' tails and manes, when more applications may be needed.

—Dr. Amat says that sea bathing "has proved of great benefit in many cases of disease of the eye. The improvement appears to be due to two causes: 1. The influence which such a course has upon the general health by curing anemia and elevating the tone of the system, since sea bathing is in the highest degree restorative. 2. Sea water and occasionally, also, the atmosphere of the sea has a local irritant action which should be watched, since it is most serviceable when there is a chronic, torpid and indolent inflammation, while it is exceedingly dangerous when the inflammation is of the acute kind."

—The common idea that a volcano is a burning mountain, from the summit of which issue smoke and flame, is declared to be erroneous by Prof. Judd, of the Royal School of Mines. In a work lately published by him on this subject, he asserts that the action of volcanoes is not due to burning or combustion, nor is it necessary that they should be. On the contrary, according to Prof. Judd, the volcano hole is very often not on the summit, but on the side, sometimes at the base of the mountain or hill, and it sends forth steam rather than smoke—the supposed raging flames being simply the glowing light of a mass of molten material reflected from these vapor clouds. This work claims to be the result of the latest and most scientific investigations of the subject in all countries.—Chicago Tribune.

—A steam generator has been devised on a plan by which, at each stroke of the piston of the engine, a certain quantity of water is projected against two strongly heated metal plates, the steam so produced going directly into the cylinder—an arrangement by which not only a special generator, but also the valve system for the entering steam, is superfluous. In a description given of this mechanism, the vaporizing surface is said to consist of two metallic cones, one within the other, with an interval of about 0.04 inch between them. The space is divided into two chambers, each of which is connected with one side of the cylinder; and the gases play first on the inner surface of the double cone, then on the outer. This arrangement, as far as tested, has given quite satisfactory results.—N. Y. Sun.

PITH AND POINT.

—Nothing but pure politeness makes a bald-headed man lift his hat on meeting with a young lady.

—A passer-by gives two cents to a beggar. "Thank you for your good intention," said the beggar, "but I no longer accept cents. They did very well when I began to beg, but now—Par- is Wit.

—Self-made: "You've made a fool of me," said an irritated man to his wife. "My dear," she sweetly responded, "you do yourself injustice; remember that in all respects you are a self-made man."

—One end of the Brooklyn bridge is falling down of old age, but they hope to have the other end completed in time to make some repairs on the first end before the other end falls down also.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—Men who have traveled the world over, who have sounded all the depths and shoals of fortune, return in their moments between sleeping and waking to the first happy scenes that greeted their infant consciousness.

—"Yes," said Fogg, "I used to believe everything; I am the most credulous fellow alive. But," he added, "since I have had this confounded sore throat, it is hard for me to swallow anything."—Boston Transcript.

—Fair discussion, a desire of justice, and confidence in each other settle disputes between private persons, and this is the kind of adjustment which can alone determine peacefully and permanently every industrial dispute.—Harper's Weekly.

—There is one topic perpetually forbidden to all well bred, all rational mortals, namely, their distempers. If you have not slept, or if you have slept, or if you have headache, or sciatica, or leprosy, or thunder stroke, I beseech you, by all angels, to hold your peace and not pollute the morning to which all the housemates bring serene and pleasant thoughts, by corruption and groans. Come out of the azure. Love the day. Do not leave the sky out of your landscape.—Emerson.

—"I say, sir, do you want to hire a boy, sir?" said a bright-looking little fellow, as he stepped into a business office. "What can you do, sir?" was the respondent inquiry. "I can tell the truth, sir," was the bright reply. "Don't want you, my little man; my business can't stand truth-telling." "Better take the boy," said a bystander. "I know him," when he says he can tell the truth he lies like blazes. He can't do it, nor his father before him couldn't either." Boy engaged on modern business principles.—New Haven Register.

HOME AND FARM.

—A rake will kill as many weeds, just when germinating, as eight hoes will a week later.

—Lucerne resists the drought easily, as the roots of this variety of clover go twenty feet down into the soil. It can be cut repeatedly in a single season.

—A friend writes us that the most strengthening and healthful diet for the summer months is strong ice-cold beef, chicken or mutton broth, with the fat skimmed off. He says try it and judge for yourself.—St. Louis Globe.

—Coffee pounded in a mortar and roasted on an iron plate, sugar burned on hot coals and vinegar boiled with myrrh and sprinkled on the floor and furniture of a sick room are excellent deodorizers.—The Sootsman.

—Chocolate Frosting: Six rounded tablespoons of grated chocolate, one and a half cups of powdered sugar, the whites of three eggs; beat the whites but very little (they must not become white), add the chocolate, stir it in, then pour in the sugar gradually, beating enough to mix it well.

—A correspondent of the Blacksmith and Wheelwright says: "The best remedy I have ever found for horses clicking, or striking their hind shoes against the forward ones, is to put on high toe calks and low heels on the hind shoes. If my brother smiths are incredulous concerning this remedy, I advise them to try it and be convinced."

—A novelty in the utilization of wire fences consists in insulating one of the continuous wires and connecting its ends with the opposite poles of a battery. Animals coming in contact with this wire will receive a shock from the electric current which will effectually deter them, it is said, from attempting to break down or override fences of this description.—Chicago Journal.

Sufficient attention is not paid to the importance of cutting off the flowing shoots of rhubarb as soon as they appear. If we would have a strong growth of leaf and stem we must not permit the roots to be weakened in this way. As soon as the flowering stems appear it will be seen that the stems become woody and strong, all the vitality of the plant is directed toward the production of the flowering stem, the most enervating process of the plant life.—Rural New Yorker.

—A novelty to many cooks is called white fruit-cake. The recipe calls for one cup of butter, two cups of sugar, two cups and a half of flour, the whites of seven eggs, two teaspoonsful of baking-powder (not heaping, but evenly full), one pound of raisins, figs, dates, and blanched almonds, a quarter of a pound of citron; cut off better still, chop these all fine, sift flour over and through them, and after mixing the cake, put the fruit in last. This makes a large cake, and it requires a long time to bake it; it should be baked slowly, so that the center may be as well done as the outside.—N. Y. Post.

Cheap Hoeing.

Allow me to give your readers a way I have of destroying weeds in my garden, and at the same time increase the productiveness of the ground.

I have for five years made it a practice of sowing salt on my garden every spring, as long as the crops planted are small, and in no danger of being injured by the salt. It must not be allowed to touch them in the least. Just as the weeds begin to come up so as they show plainly, sow salt on them when the dew is on them in the morning. One bushel of salt used in this way is worth several dollars invested in labor and is very much easier. The plan works equally as well on field crops, but is not so practical; besides field crops, being planted with more room, can be kept clean by horse power and machinery. I have in a manner cleared my garden of early-growing weeds, and could also destroy the late-growing ones if I would keep up the practice later in the season. Market gardeners would find it a good practice, if weeds are troublesome. I kill docks, sprouts, creepers, etc., the same way; but first cut them off at the ground and put the salt on the fresh cut place. I have effectually killed large locusts and other trees by one application of salt.—Cor. Louisville Farm and Fireside.

"Biting the Colt."

Much has been said and written in regard to "bitting the colt," and "bitting machines" have been devised for the purpose. Much damage has been done colts' mouths by the use of these "bitting machines." There is no need of anything of the kind. The colt can gradually become accustomed to the bit. The advice of W. H. Murray in this matter, as given in his work entitled "The Perfect Horse," is excellent. He says: "The true way to bit a colt is not to bit him at all; that is, let him bite himself. When my colts are one year old I begin to teach them to hold a bit in their mouth. The bit is of pine, some half inch in diameter, and five inches in length. This piece of soft wood is held in the mouth by a cord tied to either end, and passing over the head back of the ears. The colt loves to have this in his mouth, because it enables him to bring forward the teething process. He will bite it and work it over in his mouth, and enjoy it hugely. He will welcome it, and will actually reach out and open his mouth for it as a trained horse will for the bit. After a few days you can tie strings, making miniature reins, to this bit, and teach the colt the proper use for it. When this is done he is ready for the regular steel bit. Put your bridle on with a leather bit, large and pliant; throw your cheek line, if your bridle has one attached, into the pigsty, get into your wagon, and drive off. This is all the 'bitting' that your colt needs. Treated in this way, he will have a lively, yielding, sensational mouth. He will take the bit bravely when working up to his speed, but yield readily to the driver's will."—N. Y. Sun.

—At Little Rock, Ark., Paul Earl and Jim Young were testing the strength of their arms by locking fingers, placing elbows on the table, and waiting to see whose arm would bend and give way first. In one of the efforts Earl had his arm broken about two inches above the elbow.

—A man who was lately photographing a hut in Ireland in which lived an evicted family called out to one of the royal constabulary who was passing by: "You had better take care of the dynamite in the camera," adding that three landlords and a police inspector had been arrested for the Phoenix Park murder. This coarse jesting cost the amateur photographer dearly. In a few days he was arrested and has now gone to jail for a month rather than pay a fine. This story illustrates the hysterical condition of the authorities in Ireland. Even a wretched joke can not be uttered with impunity.—Chicago News.

—Justice William Ramsay, of the Supreme Court of New York, who lately sentenced a man to be hanged on Thursday, said to an inquiring reporter of the Rochester Express that he had never been able to ascertain the particular time when judges commenced to order the execution of capital sentences on Friday; that for many years hangings were fixed upon any day of the week except Sunday, and that he was convinced that the custom of selecting Friday is of comparatively recent origin.

Protect the Women.

Naturally pale invalids can be greatly improved in health and appearance, the mind and body strengthened, by using Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It brightens the eyes, gives roses cheeks, and creates a perfect picture of health, strength and beauty. It is woman's best friend for relieving the system of all kinds of impurities, and back and back; it never sars her skin so fair, her lips so red, or her cheeks so rosy. She attends to her household work herself now, and I never hear her complain."

The poet who sweetly referred to the "sighing of the winds," should go out West and experience a sigh-sneeze.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

MR. SAMUEL A. DENTON, of Lebanon, O., writes: "My wife has for years been a great sufferer from female diseases. Her health was very poor, and her blood full of impurities. She complained of aching in the joints and back, and would sometimes keep her bed for days. I gave her Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, which helped her greatly. She is now as healthy as I ever saw her. She attends to her household work herself now, and I never hear her complain."

This small circumscribed travel in the West cannot fill so many tents as the big concerns, but their advertisements are quite as wonderful. One of them, which does not even announce the name of its proprietor, is "a glorious and colossal consolidation of big railroad shows." It is an enterprise surpassing in magnitude anything in the history of the world. It is a show of the most extraordinary and overwhelming in attractions any amusement corporation ever thought of since the world began."

AN OPEN LETTER.

Some Outspoken Statements of Great Value from Parties of the Highest Standing.

When the people of America become so thoroughly aroused, and on a subject of such serious importance as the preservation of their lives and health, it is not natural that the ones who have been largely instrumental in the origin of its movement should speak frankly and directly to the people most interested. It is for this reason that we thus come before the public and make the following revelations:

Every careful observer who has sought to keep pace with the march of events has noted the alarming increase of certain peculiar physical troubles within the past few years. These troubles have come at unexpected moments and in a most treacherous way. They have manifested themselves in innumerable forms. But they have all had the same cause. They have not afflicted the more parts of the body, but have gone direct to the strongholds of the system and their work has usually been as prompt as it is fatal. Their treacherous and deceptive nature has prevented a careful analysis of what causes them, and, as a result, intense suffering and final disaster have usually ensued. The real cause, however, has been a derangement of the kidneys, and of these troubles are, in fact, the first symptoms of the terrible Bright's disease, which has cast its dark shadow over so many homes in the land, and is increasing wonderfully and continually. It is now conceded by the ablest physicians in every land and by eminent scientists the world over, that this disease is the result of blood poisoning. This poisoning is brought about by wasted and unhealthy kidneys that permit the poison to remain in the blood, instead of throwing it out of the system. But it is equally true that to all who have studied into the effects and have become conversant with the facts, that a disordered state of the kidneys and liver produces most of the common complaints and pains which afflict the human race, and they can be traced to this source just as certainly as can Bright's disease. To purify a system must be its source and to cure a disease we must remove the cause. It being true, therefore, that nine-tenths of all human ailments are caused by diseased kidneys or liver, the only certain way to cure these troubles is by treating the organs which cause them. How intimately the kidneys are associated with the entire system may be understood from the fact that over 1,000 ounces of blood pass through them every hour, being more than 300 gallons, or nearly one ton in the course of twenty-four hours. This vast mass of living fluid is sent to every part of the body, and if the kidneys are diseased the impurities that are in the blood are not removed, and hence pass through the system, causing disease in some one of its many terrible forms. The horrors which accompany many of the diseases caused by disordered kidneys and liver cannot be described in print, but the dangers surrounding them are even greater than the agony. And yet a person may be troubled for months without knowing the cause of the diseases that have attacked him. Some of the symptoms of the earliest stages, any one of which indicates disordered kidneys or liver, are these: Pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizzy, inflamed eyes, coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensations, indigestion, (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), a dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, drowsiness, a fretful feeling especially at night, puffing or bloating of the face. If any of the following things are noticed about the fluids passed from the system, it shows that the kidneys and liver are out of order: A red deposit, a brownish surface, an unusual odor, or thinness, a very dark or a very light color, a burning sensation in passing, an unusual odor, a retention, or a frequent desire to void and inability to do so.

The above are a few of the hundreds of symptoms which indicate the beginning of aggravated cases of kidney or liver difficulties, and, if neglected, require instant attention. The symptoms are not checked at once, they are almost certain to result in some one of the many terrible diseases of the kidneys. It is not unusual for a person to be troubled with these diseases, but they are as nothing compared to the last stages of the complaints. The kidneys waste away by degrees, the liver becomes enlarged, the heart becomes uncontrollable, the lungs are oppressed; the eye-balls grow glassy, and the entire system is reduced and debilitated. For weeks before death comes the sufferer is conscious of a burning relief, and anything that can furnish even temporary help is gladly hailed. Then it is that bloating begins; the face becomes puffy and pallid; the breath can only be caught in gasps, speech is impossible and muscular action suspended. The patient finally sinks into a state of unconsciousness to everything except the pains which are racking him, and death comes by certain but slow degrees. There can be but one conclusion which all readers of can and will draw from these facts, which is the necessity of treating the disease in time, and by that means which has been proven the best and most efficient. We have been our privilege to treat more cases and effect more cures of this terrible complaint than has ever been known before in the history of the world. The wonderful sale which our remedies have attained is due wholly to the fact that they have cured the ones who have used them. The power and value of any remedy must rest wholly on a basis of worth, and here is just where our Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has found its wonderful power and success. But in this connection comes one important fact: It has always been true that articles of merit are subject to imitations. No one seeks to counterfeit the bills of a worthless bank, or productions of a cracked inventor or witless writer are never copied. It is just so with a healing remedy. If it possesses no merit it will not be subject to imitations. If, however, it has power and value, imitations will spring up on every side. While it is a tribute to the value of this medicine that it has imitations, still, in justice to those who are suffering, we state that all should be warned against cheap imitations. There is but one kidney remedy that has ever been able to cure serious kidney troubles or control these great organs when once deranged, and that remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. There are numerous nostrums on the market claiming to be just as efficient and some which even claim to be the same. The test of merit, however, is in what has been accomplished, and we therefore say unhesitatingly that for all diseases of the kidneys, liver and urinary organs, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure stands alone, not only in point of excellence, but in the wonderful results it has achieved. In order to successfully avoid the purchase of spurious and injurious medicines, observe these facts: Our remedy is put up in dark amber glass bottles, with the Safe (our trade mark) blown in the black. A private proprietary six cent internal revenue stamp is affixed to the neck and covers the top of the cork and is of a light brown color. In the middle thereof is a Safe in outline, and on it the picture of a negro gathering herbs. If this stamp is not blown on every bottle of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, or if there is any evidence that it has been tampered with and if a Safe is not blown on the back of the bottle, reject the bottle at once, and insist on having a genuine one.

We are led to publish the foregoing in order that the public may know and realize just where we stand. We have always sought to keep our personality from obtruding upon the public, and we will not do so now. Our remedy is the essential thing, but the unexampled use which has been made of this medicine, and the volumes of letters we are constantly receiving demand a personal statement from us. We are justly gratified at the confidence which has been shown us, and thankful for the myriads of cures our remedy has performed, and we pledge ourselves for the future as we have endeavored in the past, to furnish the best and only valuable remedy that can control and cure all the many and terrible troubles arising from disorders of these great organs.

Sincerely,
H. H. WARNER & CO.,
